EGG HUNT

"With scales of stone and wings so wide,
I guard the greens where plants reside.

I do not breathe, nor do I bite,
But stand my ground from day to night.
Among the blooms, both bright and tall,
Find your prize where shadows fall.
Seek near my claws, don't be late—
Your treasure lies beneath my gate!"

EGG HUNT

"I sit so still, both black and white,
A gentle bear, a peaceful sight.
By blossoms pink and petals bright,
I watch the world in soft sunlight.
Unlike my cousin, big and bold,
I do not roam, nor break the mold.
But near my paws, if you dare,
A hidden treasure waits right there!"

EGG HUNT

Graceful and bright with colors rare,
I bloom with beauty, light as air.
Though roots may cling and petals sway,
I hold a secret tucked away.

Look beneath my blooms so grand,
Where gentle leaves and stems expand.
Among the orchids, soft and sweet,
Your hidden treasure waits to meet!

EGG HUNT

"Through the path where small trees grow,
A place of peace, where breezes flow.
With careful hands, they twist and bend,
A living art that knows no end.
Near Buddha's gaze so calm, so wise,
A secret waits—a little prize.
Among the stones, so smooth, so pale,
Find your egg upon this trail."

EGG HUNT

"I sparkle, I dance, I sing as I fall,
A source of peace, enjoyed by all.
In sun I glisten, in shade I rest,
A hidden prize—your next big test!
Look near my base, or just behind,
A little treasure you may find.
But mind the splash, don't get too wet—
Your Easter egg is waiting yet!"

EGG HUNT

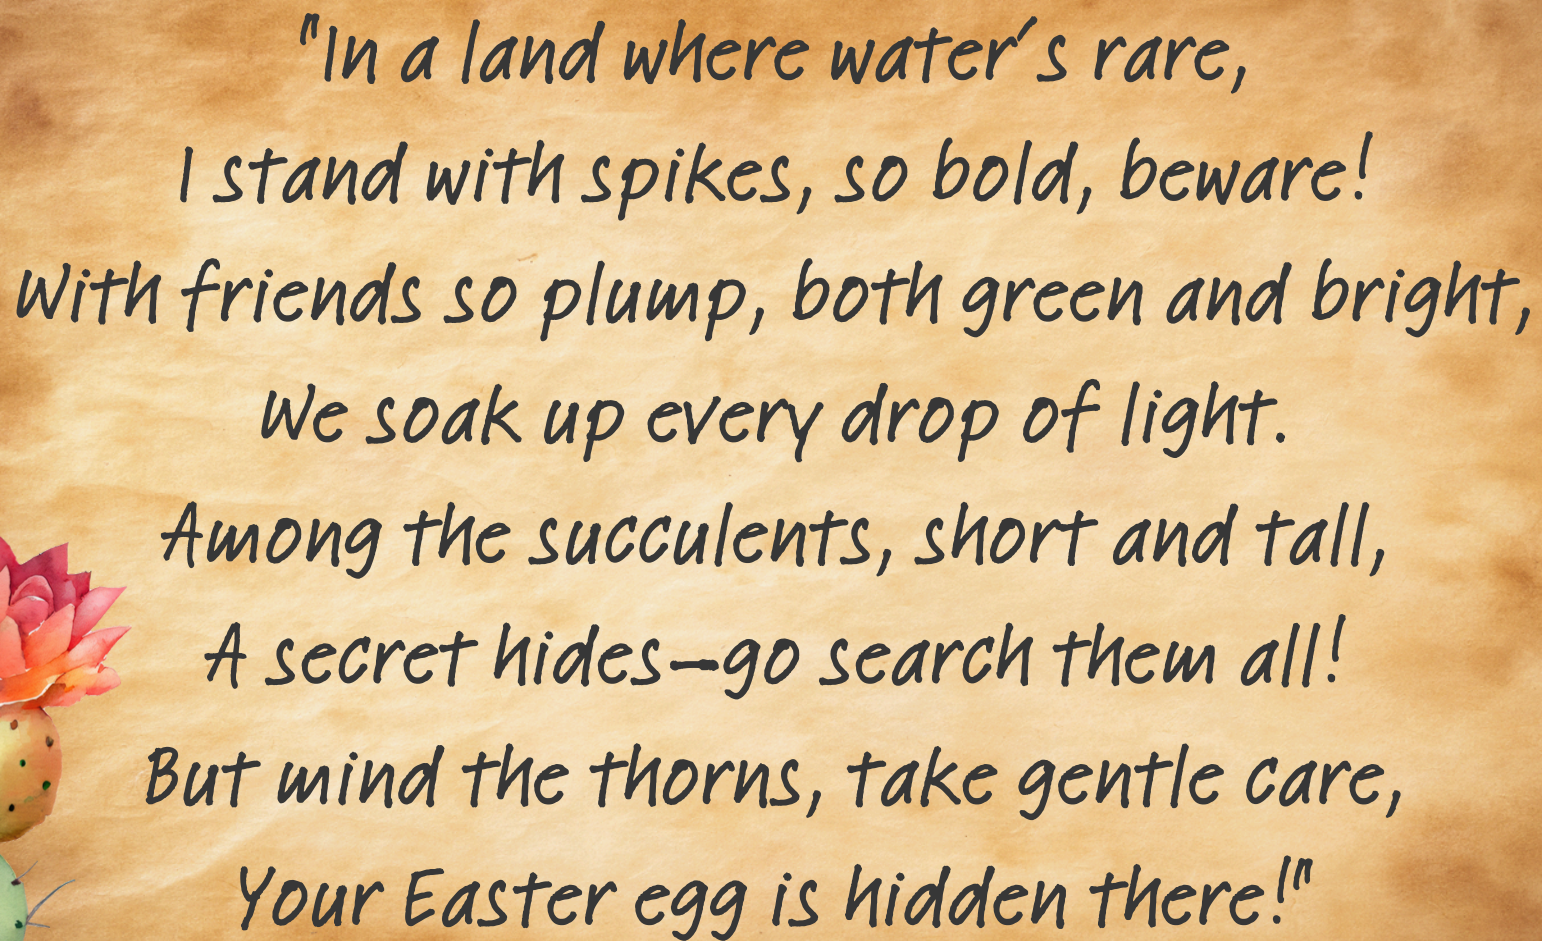

"A place of warmth, a place so sweet,
Where flowers bloom and people meet.
With love and care, it stands so true,
Grandma's Garden waits for you!
By plate or plant, both side by side,
A hidden egg will try to hide.
Search with care, don't look too far—
Your treasure's near, right where you are!"

EGG HUNT

"In a land where water's rare,
I stand with spikes, so bold, beware!
With friends so plump, both green and bright,
We soak up every drop of light.
Among the succulents, short and tall,
A secret hides—go search them all!
But mind the thorns, take gentle care,
Your Easter egg is hidden there!"
